Company Name : OC Oerlikon

Company Sector : Machinery and Materials (Surface Solutions & Polymer Processing)

Operating Geography : Switzerland, Europe, Global

About the Company : OC Oerlikon is a publicly-traded technology company based in Pfäffikon, Switzerland. Oerlikon-Bührle Holding AG, which was founded in 1973, laid the groundwork for OC Oerlikon. In January of 2000, Oerlikon-Bührle became Unaxis. In May 2006, the commercial register recorded the change of Unaxis Management AG to OC Oerlikon Management AG. The Group's solutions and complete services, as well as its advanced materials, help its customers improve and maximise the performance, function, design, and sustainability of their products and production processes in vital sectors. Surface Solutions and Polymer Processing are the two divisions of the Group. Textile manufacturing equipment, large-scale thin-film solar modules, and precision tool protective coatings (Balzers) are just a few of the production systems and components that make the corporation a global high-tech powerhouse. Oerlikon also creates equipment for conveying process gases and manufacturing vacuums (Leybold Vacuum), as well as numerous propulsion technologies, such as automobile drive systems and gearbox workings (Graziano and Fairfield), and aerospace and production systems for nanotechnology applications. Bosch, CMC, Kraft, Ferrari, and Caterpillar are among the company's customers. It employs over 10, 600 people in 179 sites across 37 countries. Oerlikon Metco Coating Services stated on January 3 that its new laser cladding service centre in Huntersville, NC, a Charlotte suburb, is now fully operating.

OC Oerlikon's USP lies in its being the global leader in surface engineering, polymer processing, and additive manufacturing. The mission statement of OC Oerlikon's reads, "To become the leading provider of surface solutions, advanced materials and materials processing".
