Company Name : bioMérieux SA

Company Sector : Biotechnology

Operating Geography : France, Europe, Global

About the Company :

bioMérieux SA is a French international biotechnology firm headquartered in Marcy-l'Étoile, near Lyon, France. Alain Mérieux created BD Mérieux in 1963, and in 1974, he became the company's majority stakeholder. BioMérieux was formed through the merger of BD Mérieux and BioMérieux. Through product creation, acquisitions, and partnerships, the corporation grew its services and offers. The firm develops diagnostic solutions (reagents, instruments, software, and services) that pinpoint the cause of disease and contamination, thereby improving patient health and ensuring consumer safety. Its products are used to identify infectious infections, screen for cancer, and monitor heart attacks. Microorganisms in agri-food, pharmaceutical, and cosmetic products can also be detected using them. BioMérieux is a publicly-traded company on the NYSE Euronext Paris Stock Exchange. On December 1, 2021, the company announced that its Silico analyses have confirmed that its BIOFIRE® and ARGENE® molecular tests efficiently amplify and detect SARS-CoV-2 infection with Omicron variant with unchanged performance to date. As of early 2022, the company has employed 12,800 people.

bioMérieux SA's USP or unique selling proposition lies in being a world leader in in-vitro diagnostics for over 55 years and is present in 44 countries, serving over 160 nations through a broad network of distributors. The mission statement of bioMérieux SA reads, "bioMérieux is committed to serving public health around the world, through the fight against infectious diseases".
