Company Name : Fuji Electric Co. Ltd.

Company Sector : Manufacturing, Electric Equipment

Operating Geography : Japan, Asia, Global

About the Company :

Fuji Electric Co., Ltd. creates electric machinery and electronic goods. The main office of Fuji Electric is headquartered in Shinagawa-Ku, Tokyo, Japan. Furukawa Electric, a division of Furukawa zaibatsu firm, and Siemens AG merged to establish Fuji Electric in 1923. The firm has operations in Asia, Europe, and North America. The business is divided into six segments. Appliances, power supply systems, transformer systems, and energy management are all part of the Power Electronics System and Energy Solutions category. The Power Electronics System Industry Solutions segment covers facility construction, information technology systems, environmental and social solutions, process automation, and factory automation. The Power Producing section consists of nuclear machinery, thermal power generation facilities, and new and renewable energy sources. Semiconductors and disc media are included in the electronic device section. Vending machines and store distribution are included in the food distribution section. Real estate, insurance, travel, finance, printing, information, and staffing services are all provided by the other component. Fuji Electric in March 2022 gave a total of 100 million JPY to UNHCR, UNICEF, and the Japanese Red Cross Society for emergency humanitarian help in Ukraine and surrounding nations.

The USP of Fuji Electric is its ability to independently design and build energy-saving power semiconductors, as well as the company's potential to help the world achieve the objective of a decarbonized civilization. The mission statement of the company reads, "Through our innovation in energy technology, we contribute to the creation of responsible and sustainable societies. Achieve further growth through our global business expansion".
