About the Company : Hindalco Industries Limited is an Indian aluminium and copper manufacturing company and a subsidiary of The Aditya Birla Group. It is headquartered in Mumbai, Maharashtra, India. In 1958, Aditya Birla Group set up The Hindustan Aluminium Corporation Limited which was later restructured and retitled as Hindalco in 1989. It started its manufacturing in Renukoot in Uttar Pradesh building 20 thousand metric tons per year of alumina. In 2007, Hindalco acquired Novelis making the integrated equity the world's largest rolled aluminium producer. The company's aluminium mass-producing units contain the full value chain from bauxite mining, alumina refining, captive power generation, coal mining, and aluminium smelting to downstream value addition of aluminium rolling, extruding, and foil making. In 2020, during the challenging time of the pandemic, Hindalco continued to serve its customers in essential industries. The company's aluminium is used to produce components of life saving ventilators, components of X-ray, and CT scans machines, Personal Protection Equipment (PPE), Covid testing booths, kits and sanitizer stands. Hindalco has received a Gold award for 'Chapter Convention on Quality Concepts' by Quality Circle Forum of India. Hindalco has also received several awards for its safety management plan. The company leverages the talent of 40,000 employees as of early 2021.

Hindalco Industries Limited's Unique Selling Proposition or USP lies in it being one of Asia's largest producer of primary aluminium. Hindalco Industries's mission statement reads, "To relentlessly pursue the creation of superior shareholder value, by exceeding customer expectation profitably, unleashing employee potential, while being a responsible corporate citizen, adhering to our values".
