About the Company : Patagonia, Inc. is an outdoor apparel company based in Ventura, California, United States. The company was established by Yvon Chouinard in 1973. Patagonia's product range include clothing for activities, such as surfing. They sell athletic equipment, backpacks, sleeping bags, and camping food, among other things, in addition to clothing. The company owns and operate offices in the United States, the Netherlands, Japan, South Korea, Australia, Chile and Argentina. The firm also operates two distribution centres— its facilities where it receives goods from factories in the US and overseas—and more than 70 Patagonia stores worldwide. The organisation collaborates with other businesses all over the world to reduce the damage caused by clothing production. The American retailer holds its suppliers to the industry's highest environmental and social standards. To control this process, it relies on industry resources and guidelines, and when these aren't available, the organisation creates them. Patagonia has vowed to donate 1% of revenue to environmental protection and restoration and it's business and individual members give directly to highly vetted environmental non-profit organizations. In April, 2021, Patagonia launched the We the Power website and documentary to highlight the growing community energy movement in Europe. The campaign's goal is to demonstrate the benefits that a renewable energy revolution will bring to people and the environment.

Patagonia's Unique Selling Point or USP lies in its clothing which is Fair Trad Certified and made from organic cotton, free from synthetic pesticides, herbicides, and GMO seeds. Patagonia's mission statement reads, "we're in business to save our home planet".
